

April 20, 2017 | Lincoln, NE

2017 EquiLearn Focus Session

Engaging Stakeholders in Critical Conversations About Equity at the Intersections of Race, National Origin, Sex, Religion, and Socioeconomic Status

MAP Center Facilitators

Dr. Seena Skelton, Director of Operations

Dr. Tiffany Kyser, Associate Director of Engagement and Partnerships

Dr. Tanya Ihlo, Cadre I TA Specialist and Research Assistant Professor, University of Nebraska-Lincoln

Objectives

Participants will...

- Discuss one's role and responsibility in convening conversations about inequities when engaging in school/district improvement efforts.
- Reflect on one's multiple identities and the implications of one's positionality for leading conversations about equity.
- Examine and apply key practices in engaging and leading conversations about inequity.
- Practice anticipating, understanding, reframing and engaging in constructive critique and correction of problematic discourse and paradigms (e.g., deficit thinking).
- Plan immediate steps for initiating conversations about equity.

Agenda

Thursday, April 20, 2017 (8:30—4:30 pm CST)

8:30—9:00 am Registration

Welcome and Overview

The Importance of Reflecting on the Implications of One's Positionality
When Leading Conversations About Equity

Key Practices in Engaging and Leading Conversations About Inequity

12:00—1:00 pm Lunch (On Your Own)

Applying Key Practices in Engaging and Leading Conversations About Inequity

Action Planning for Taking Immediate Steps to Engaging Stakeholders in Conversations About Equity

4:00—4:30 pm Wrap-Up and Adjournment